The new financial center is located at 307 Unionville-Indian Trail Road and will be Allegacy’s first site in Union County. The credit union will focus on offering financial resources to the area’s growing population of business professionals and families. Located near the town center, this facility will conveniently offer Allegacy’s financial resources to business and consumer members.

“We are thrilled to continue expanding our footprint into new and thriving communities in the Charlotte metro area,” says Allegacy President and CEO Cathy Pace. “Allegacy currently serves more than 8,600 members in Mecklenburg County, and we look forward to opening our first financial center in neighboring Union County. Our team is ready to continue building relationships with community leaders and welcome new members.”

The new facility is strategically located on the southeast side of Charlotte, creating an even stronger network for Allegacy. The credit union also has financial centers at Queens Road, Prosperity Church Road, and in Davidson. Hiring for open positions will begin soon.
